Emmanuel’s Web Site to Launch With New Design

The Emmanuel College web site, www.emmanuel.edu, is getting a whole new look — and information will be easier to access than ever. After months of reconstruction, the new site will launch at the end of February and will offer clearer navigation and faster downloads along with a 500% increase in its number of pages. User-friendly design and fresh content will make the site a convenient and efficient way to access up-to-date information about the college community.

During the redesign process, Graphic Designer for Electronic Media Alice Matsumoto stuck to the principles of practical web design and her own personal philosophy of both keeping things simple and making the site as widely accessible as possible.

"There are a lot of flashy features that can be added to web sites, but the main goal of this site is to offer information on the college that is relevant and easy to find," said Matsumoto. "I wanted to create a site that was fast and accessible for a wide range of users."

The new site was built with various computer platforms and browsers in mind, which is especially important for dial-up users both in the U.S. and internationally that may have less connection capacity to access the site. Matsumoto has done this by reducing file sizes and making the site as widely accessible as possible.

Matsumoto came to Emmanuel in May of 2001 and has made a dramatic impact with her knowledge of web design principles. She immediately redesigned the site's home page and made adjustments to outdated content and embarked on creating a plan for the completely redesigned site. The process of the redesign started in early August of 2001 and was completed in December.

With the arrival of Matsumoto as Emmanuel's in-house web designer, content and architecture can be modified and added almost immediately. Other changes made by Matsumoto prior to this major redesign include the addition of the campus calendar, updated photo galleries from college events, revamped Athletics and International Admissions pages, and the inclusion of an online version of the Emmanuel News.
tain, enabling ongoing changes and expansion. The web has become such a primary resource for information, so we must be prepared with the most up-to-date content.*

Much of the redesign process involved gathering and checking the accuracy and consistency in the site's content. The new site features pages and sections for more of the college's offices and departments, as well as faculty pages, course descriptions, a site index and a FAQ section. The new site has more than 400 pages, as compared to fewer than 80 pages on the old site.

Matsumoto, a Vancouver native, is a 1998 graduate of the University of British Columbia where she studied English and Psychology. She gained her hands-on web design experience at Vancouver-based Communicate.com, a company that built web sites. Matsumoto worked on quality control for the company's clients.

"Web design is very different from print design, although it seems graphical in nature," said Matsumoto. "Web designers should always consider the user first and then what he or she seeks from the site. There is a danger of creating something flashy and complicated when visitors are really looking for something straight-forward."

Janet M. Daley Library Lecture Hall Named in December

The Janet M. Daley Library Lecture Hall was dedicated during a special reception on December 19, 2001. The Chair of Emmanuel's Board of Trustees, C. Michael Daley, contributed a significant gift to Emmanuel College towards the renovation and modernization of the library lecture hall to name this state-of-the-art classroom in honor of his wife. The reception and naming was a surprise to Janet Daley on the occasion of her birthday.

The Daley family and friends along with members of Emmanuel's Board of Trustees and administration gathered in the Main Reading Room at 5:00 p.m. During the program in the lecture hall, President Sister Janet Eisner, SND talked about the history of the Emmanuel Library and the many uses of the newly renovated, state-of-the-art lecture hall, and the leadership and friendship of Mike and Janet Daley to Emmanuel College for over a decade. Mr. Daley's warm remarks focused on his love and gratitude to his wife and the importance of this gift to their family and to Emmanuel College.

After the new sign for the Janet M. Daley Library Lecture Hall was unveiled at the entrance, the guests returned to the Main Reading Room. They were treated to a performance of Christmas music by Laura Grande '02, who was singing with the Boston Pops later that evening. A birthday cake-cutting celebration with Janet and Mike Daley and their children and grandchildren concluded the evening. The Daley's daughter, Mary Beth Daley Gray, is a 1990 graduate of Emmanuel College.

Mike Daley has served on Emmanuel's Board of Trustees since 1991. The Daleys have been loyal and generous friends and donors to Emmanuel, contributing the new altar in the Chapel in 1988, and now contributing this leadership gift to renovate and name the Janet M. Daley Library Lecture Hall. Emmanuel College is deeply grateful to Mike and Janet Daley for their extraordinary generosity and loyal support.

Admissions Office Hosts Decision Day and Winter Open House

The Office of Admissions welcomed prospective students during its 8th annual Decision Day program on January 21st. During Decision Day students bring application materials and receive a decision on their admission on the same day. As part of the program, students and guests participated in an interactive session called "Enhancing a Liberal Education with Strong Computer Skills" taught by Dr. Gouri Banerjee. Visitors also had the opportunity to tour the campus and participate in "The Emmanuel Experience" session with Director of First Year Programs, and Associate Director of Admissions Mary Beth Thomas '84 and Academic Advisor Matthew Champa.

Prospective Emmanuel students were also welcomed to campus on Saturday, February 2nd during the Winter Open House. Students toured the campus, learned about academic and student life programs, met with current students and found out about the admissions and financial aid processes during the well attended event.

Under Construction

The commuter lounge, on the plaza level of the Administration Building, is in the midst of getting a new look. Stay tuned for updates on progress.
Emmanuel Receives Federal Funding

Under a recently passed U.S. Senate labor, education and health spending bill, Emmanuel College will receive $850,000 to upgrade classrooms and technology for its teacher training programs. Senator Edward Kennedy personally contacted President Sister Janet Eisner, SND, to pass along the news. Sister Janet Eisner will be in Washington, DC on February 20th to meet with Congressional members to discuss additional funding for the college from the 103rd United States Congress.

Graduate and Professional Programs
Reception Honors December Graduates

December 2001 graduates of Emmanuel College’s Graduate and Professional Programs gathered along with their family and friends for a celebration and dinner on January 17th. About 40 graduates were honored for their achievement during the event, which began with an invocation in the Emmanuel College Chapel. Vice President for Planning and New Ventures Mary Louise Hitchens congratulated the graduates and families and Director of Special Gifts Maureen Donnelly from Development and Alumni Relations was there to welcome graduates with the Alumni Association and present a gift.

President Bush Speaks at Boston Latin

President George W. Bush visited the Fenway neighborhood on January 8th, discussing the importance of his new education bill during a speech at the Boston Latin School. Emmanuel College closed its doors in the afternoon to accommodate the influx of traffic to the area. President Sister Janet Eisner, SND, and three other members of the Emmanuel community were invited to attend the event.

MASCO To Offer New Shuttle Service

Beginning February 19th, Longwood Medical and Academic Area (LMA) commuters from areas south of Boston will be able to board a special shuttle at the JFK/Massachusetts Institute of Technology stop. The service is a benefit and free of charge for MASCO Institution commuters and will run Monday through Friday from 5:55 a.m. to 9:30 a.m. and 3:15 p.m. to 8:10 p.m. The shuttle runs every 15 minutes and leaves from the JFK/MIT MBA bus shelter. Emmanuel is a member of MASCO along with several other colleges and area hospitals.

New Staff Member Welcomed

Jana Kapoukakis has joined the Emmanuel College staff as career resource development assistant. Prior to Emmanuel, Kapoukakis was a human resources staffing consultant at Kforce. She earned her Bachelor of Arts Degree in American Studies from Stonehill College.

FEBRUARY 2002
Students Explore the History and Culture of Boston in Cityscapes

Great cities of the world have inspired artists, philosophers and writers and cultivated political and social change since the earliest days of civilization. Emmanuel students are fortunate to live in the heart of Boston, a city with tremendous historical, cultural and social significance. This fact is highlighted in Cityscapes, an interdisciplinary, team-taught course held in the Janet M. Daley Library Lecture Hall, which focuses on the city as both a cultural phenomenon and a means to explore the liberal arts.

As a required course for all first-year students, Cityscapes represents both a common experience for classmates and an avenue to become immersed in the city that is their home. Through lectures and small group discussions, the course's goal is to develop reading, writing and speaking skills. This year's faculty includes Professor of Psychology Dr. Michael St. Clair, Professor of Art Sister Ellen Glavin, Associate Professor of Sociology and Religious Studies Sister Mary Johnson, SND, Assistant Professor of History Dr. Melanie Murphy, Assistant Professor of History Dr. William Leonard and Associate Professor of English Dr. Lisa Stepaniak.

"While Cityscapes focused on other great cities in the past, the course has evolved to center around Boston, its history, literary tradition, immigration, museums, etc.," said Professor of Psychology Michael St. Clair. "We touch on the Puritan origins of the city, the physical changes to the landscape, the African-American Heritage on Beacon Hill, the Women's Heritage Walk and more."

Students are given assignments throughout the semester that require them to venture into the city, from looking at selected paintings in the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum to walking the original perimeter of the city on the Peninsula Walk. The course looks at the city from many perspectives, from historical to cultural to artistic, and relates each discipline to another.

During the first semester, students learned about the history of Emmanuel and the effects of our ever-changing world on its campus over the years during a guest lecture by President Sister Janet Eisner, SND. Sister Janet chronicled the college's history, from its founding in 1919 by the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur through the present, outlining significant events and sharing photographs and yearbook pictures.

Sister Janet told students in Cityscapes that they are part of history themselves, both as Emmanuel students and members of a society dealing with a dramatic global conflict. Only days after joining the Emmanuel College community, students witnessed the tragic events of September 11th, which plunged the entire world into a time of uncertainty. In response, the community gathered for educational discussions, support and prayer, just as Emmanuel students have done during other tumultuous times in history.

Sister Janet pointed out that as the college's first coeducational class ever and largest entering class in 30 years, this year's Cityscapes students are part of an exciting and energetic time for the college. A new student recreational center will be the next addition to the campus as the college continues to improve the campus and student life. The class will also witness the construction of Merck & Company's major research facility on the Emmanuel campus.

Other guest lecturers during the first semester included Emmanuel Treasurer Sister Ann Donovan, SND, Owen Donnelly of the Boston Redevelopment Authority and Scott Dumont of Corcoran Jennis construction company.

Following the lecture, Sister Janet said, "The Cityscapes curriculum is one of our signature strengths at Emmanuel. We are all proud of this unique educational opportunity that links Emmanuel students to the city of Boston. I particularly enjoy lecturing to the Cityscapes class, interacting with our students and teaching them about the history and traditions of their college."
Fine Arts and Commercial Arts Merge in Immig Gallery Exhibit

"Commercially Viable," the latest in a series of group shows at Emmanuel College's Lillian Immig Gallery, looks at the intersection of two art forms—fine arts and commercial arts. The collection of work from Boston-based artists, Joanne Kailontzis, Pia Schachter, Clifford Stoltze, and Cynthia von Buhler, on display in the gallery through February 21, 2001, features a combination of media including photography, commercial products and digital images.

Artists featured in "Commercially Viable" have achieved national and international recognition for their work, which makes the exhibit a very unique opportunity for both the Emmanuel and Boston art communities. A review of the exhibit will be the cover story for the February 15th issue of artsMedia magazine.

Artist, Graphic Designer and Freelance Design Director, Joanne Kailontzis of the Fort Point Arts Community characterizes her work as "digital pop art." She designed the well-known moon face logo and animation promos for the "Tonight Show" and "Late Night with Conan O'Brien," which are featured in the exhibit and titled "Night Shift Stills."

Her work is also on display at Fort Point Arts Community Gallery, Gallery 5 North and the Arlington Center for the Arts. She has had recent solo shows at the Artists Foundation, the M3 Gallery and the Box Gallery at National Video Kailontzis, along with artist Danny O, has designed a series of banners for City Hall Plaza's Community Pavilion, and she has received two Emmy Awards for her broadcast design work and several Broadcast Designer Association Awards.

Photographer, Installation Artist and Object Maker Pia Schachter of Brookline was a beauty writer for ten years, and worked as a columnist for the Improper Bostonian, writing "Beauty and Truth." Schachter characterizes her work, which is clearly influenced by her writing experience, as "perky commercial images" which offer social commentary. Her "Promise Beauty Counter" is an actual cosmetic counter holding and displaying products featuring photographs of famous women. This piece "exposes the myths sold in jars."

Schachter's work is on display throughout the Boston area, with recent shows at the Dietrich Gallery and at the Allston Skirt Gallery. Her work will be in an upcoming spring show entitled, "Terrain: Sculpture Today" at the Maine College of Art.

Creative Director Clifford Stoltze of Stoltze Design, a studio made up of designers, technologists and project managers, serves clients from financial institutions and software developers to publishers and record labels. Pieces on display at Emmanuel include a collection of album covers and client posters and announcements. Stoltze has been honored by a number of design organizations including the American Institute of Graphic Arts (AIGA), the American Center for Design, the Society of Publication Designers (SPD) and the Type Directors Club. Stoltze's work has been exhibited internationally and he is a partner in the Boston-based independent record label Castle von Buhler, designing packaging and co-producing.

Fine Artist, Illustrator, Author and Performer, Cynthia von Buhler of Allston is exhibiting four pieces, three-dimensional paintings that are both fine art objects and illustrations. Her paintings are often used as CD covers. Both "Norma" and "Figanos," on display at the Immig Gallery, were commissioned by the Seattle Opera and used for the 2002 season's promotion.

Von Buhler has participated in many shows in Boston, New York City, Philadelphia, Toronto, San Jose and Los Angeles. Her Illustrations have been featured in The New York Times, The Boston Globe, Vogue, Los Angeles' Entertainment Today and The Atlantic Monthly. She also designs book covers and has received the Gold, Silver and Bronze medals at the Society of Illustrators Los Angeles and the Gold Medal from the Visual Club, as well as awards from the Society of Illustrators New York City, Communication Arts, 3-Dimensional Artists and American Illustration. She is a partner in the record label Castle von Buhler.

"Commercially Viable" is open to the public, free of charge. Gallery hours are Monday through Thursday 11:00 a.m.-4:00 p.m. and by appointment. The Lillian Immig Gallery is located on the second floor of Emmanuel College's Cardinal Cushing Library.
Experience and Dedication Mark the Office of Counseling and Health Services

Many things have changed during Director of Counseling Linda Jurgela's 21 years at Emmanuel College but one basic goal has remained constant for her— to be a supportive presence in the lives of students. While this may sound simple enough, sharing emotional and physical concerns can be difficult for many. The staff of the Office of Counseling and Health Services has worked tirelessly to create an environment where students can feel safe and comfortable, assisting them through emotional problems and transition.

"Our office is open to anybody and everybody," said Dr. Jurgela. "Students are never put off. It is so important to address their needs immediately, even if it is just for a few minutes initially. We are always here and available."

The Office of Counseling and Health Services touches across multiple aspects of student life, working with many campus offices and getting referrals from faculty and staff members. For example, the office has developed close relationships with Resident Assistants to ensure a healthy living environment for students in the residence halls.

Patricia Morell coordinates the office's health services side, handling insurance issues and arranging various medical services throughout the year, such as cholesterol screenings, flu shots and eye screenings. Emmanuel has developed strong relationships with area hospitals, including nearby Beth Israel-Deaconess, ensuring access to first-rate medical attention at all times.

On the counseling front, in addition to addressing individual concerns, the office staff re-assesses the needs of the entire student body each year, developing various programs and workshops most relevant to the community at a particular time. While basic needs often remain constant, current events and issues demand that relevant topics be addressed.

Past workshops and panels have focused on the topics of eating disorders, self-esteem, stress management, and relationships. The office has also formed bereavement and international support groups. Dr. Jurgela has seen an increase in drop-ins this year, a possible result of several factors—a larger student body, recent world events or new societal views.

"Society has changed a great deal, therapy is seen as healthy now and people are less wary about coming to the office," said Jurgela. "In addition, we have developed relationships and a comfort level with students. We all have moments when we are stuck. It is so important for people to have the wisdom and the tools to know how to get unstuck."

A popular panel discussion, which will be repeated this year in February or March is "Relationship Night." In previous years, seven faculty members participated, sharing experiences that they have had in relationships, current or past, and answered student questions. Panels took place in St. Joe's foyer, creating an environment for comfortable discussion, and a chance for students and faculty to relate on a more personal level.

"Relationships are a necessity and a process that we all must constantly work on," said Dr. Jurgela. "We can never take relationships for granted."

Dr. Jurgela holds a Bachelor of Arts degree in psychology from Boston College, a master's degree in counseling from Lesley College, a master's degree in counseling from Bridgewater State College, a doctorate in leadership and administration from the University of Massachusetts, and is a licensed mental health professional in the state of Massachusetts. As a member of the Emmanuel College staff for over two decades, she has come to know the community well and understands the need to feel a part of that community.

"In all my years here, I have never heard the same story twice, but one ingredient is usually the same and that is loneliness," said Jurgela. "If we can make people not feel so lonely and assist them with the tools to well-being, then we're doing our job."

In addition to full-time staff members, Consulting Psychiatrist Anne Ollen-Smith visits campus for scheduled appointments and Ellen Ronka is an intern from Lesley College.

The Office of Counseling and Health Services is an integral aspect of student life here at Emmanuel and its staff has worked hard to develop a strong support system for the entire community," said Vice President for Student Affairs and Dean of Students Dr. Patricia Rissmeyer. "Dr. Jurgela and Pat Morell are a tremendous team! They strive to provide members of the community with the best possible care and a true sense of belonging. With their help, many have maintained good health and a sense of well-being. The services of Counseling and Health are invaluable to our community."

The Office of Counseling and Health Services is open Monday through Friday from 8:00 am to 4:00 pm. The office can be reached at 5-9920 and Dr. Jurgela can be reached on her pager 24 hours a day, seven days a week.

"L.E.A.D.E.R.S. promotes involvement," said Dr. Rissmeyer. "Research correlates outside activities with both college success and life success. Students participating in these activities have higher GPAs, manage their time better and have a greater sense of belonging to their college."

Deidre Bradley '98 of Campus Ministry, coordinator of the program, outlined the functional aspects of the program. Each member chooses five letters or categories and must tally 20 units in each area to reach a total of 100 units.

Roula Youssif '02, who completed the program, shared her personal experience with the group. Ken-Rose Harkins '04 and Nicole Giron '02 joined her to present each component of the program and to outline a few examples of activities that fulfill the requirements in each category.

For Leadership, students can be an Emmanuel College Singer, a resident assistant, an orientation advisor, a club or class officer or captain of an athletic team.

To fulfill the Ethics component, students can participate in an ethical discussion, serve on the judicial board or develop a code of conduct.

For Activities, membership in a campus club, attending an athletic event or concert or being an athlete can gain points.

Examples of activities to fulfill the Dedication requirement include residence service, the CityYear Serve-a-thon, tutoring or participation in Alternative Spring Break.

Evaluation includes the accumulation of points and an evaluative interview.

For Relationships student can choose to attend wellness programs, hospitality night or first-year programs.

And finally, to complete the Spirituality component, participants can be a Eucharistic Minister, go on a retreat or attend a Spaghetti and Spirituality session.

Deidre Bradley outlined the new submission and evaluation process for completed activities. All records are now in the L.E.A.D.E.R.S. office. The conference features a calendar that will be updated monthly and will give the number of points each event is worth. Submission forms are available in the conference, which are reviewed by Bradley and Jessica Shaw of Residence Life. An access database holds all student files and returning members to the program can transfer into the new system.

Anyone interested in joining L.E.A.D.E.R.S. can contact Deidre Bradley 5-9753 or stop by Campus Ministry on the plaza level of the Administration Building.
